

Doris Anne Boner Bland

July 23, 1939 - August 17, 2017

BLAND, Doris Boner Anne, of Hendersonville, TN. Succumbing to complications of congestive heart failure, she passed away peacefully on Aug. 17, 2017.

She is survived by her brother, former Mayor Bill Boner.

Doris Anne was a graduate of East Nashville High School and a lifelong member of Tulip Street United Methodist Church. She worked for many years as an advocate for senior citizens in the Nashville community. Every Saturday night she could be seen meeting and greeting her friends at John A's.

At her request, there will be no visitation and the graveside service will be private.

“ My mother and Doris Anne’s mother were good friends, being involved in the women’s group at Tulip St. Methodist Church where DA and I always sat together for Sunday School and church service. I remember visiting in her home while her younger brother “little William Hill” (later to become mayor of Nashville) was running around getting into mischief. When my family moved from East Nashville across the Cumberland River, and then later to Ky., we lost touch, but I have good memories of those times together.
