“ I just saw this. I'm so sorry. I'm so sorry the kids will grow up without her. She was so young. Very heartbreaking.

Dr. Amy McKee Dacus - January 16, 2018 at 01:54 AM

“ It's been almost 4 months since you left us Jamie. Thanksgiving..... Christmas..... and now New Years has and will not be the same without you. Cherishing all the memories with you baby. I loved you from the day I met you. Your quiet beautiful sassy and prissy way just drew me in and my heart was yours before I could turn to walk away. Thank you for loving me. Thank you for being you and thank you for our wonderful children. We will see one another again. I love you Jamie.

“ As I sit here feeding the boy and he farts a cloud of wretched around my nose. I think of you. I think of you because if you were here watching you'd laugh and laugh. No one would believe it, I'm sure, but that was one of my favorite sounds in the world. I always looked up to you. You are/were every bit of what I hoped I could've been and I always wished for more time with you when I was little. Life happened to me and it kept me from that and then it just kept happening. I did my best to soak up your light and beauty when I could....I truly loved you big and I'm going to miss you so much, Auntie. I will be praying for Grandma, Tay Tay, and Kinny Kins along with the rest of the family to remain strong, united in our love for each other. I hope you got the prettiest wings in Heaven. ❤️

“ Sweet Jamie, words cannot describe the sadness I am feeling since you left us. Every single memory of all the good times we have shared has gone through my mind. I love you so much as you always remembered my birthday and especially Mother's Day. Without fail, I always got your call wishing me the best joy and love on each of those special days. I remember all the Thanksgivings and Christmas we shared and I so enjoyed teasing you a bit about the pumpkin pie I baked for you. I love your darling children and will stay close to them always. I will keep your memory alive in them. I will think of you everyday, miss you and love you forever. Aunt Ann
