“ Jen....I am at a loss for words. I cannot begin to thank you for all the memories we shared. You will be missed more than you know. Dorothy will always love her Grandma...You left her with words of wisdom & touched her heart in so many ways. Rest in Peace my dear "mother-in-Law" I know you will always watch over our little girl!

“ I'm so sorry my aunt had to end her life this way. I feel like she had many things coming her way such as a new career. My heart goes out to my mother and the rest of her siblings and especially her children (my cousins) Stephanie and Sterling during these hard times. I wish you all the best and my thoughts are with you.

“ Having a sister in your life can either be a wonderful or terrible experience, depending on your relationship. If you have an older sister and you are a girl, she can often show you how to navigate the way through some of the more difficult areas of growing up. This is also true if you are a boy. Your older sister can help explain to you how to interact with the opposite sex. Younger sisters are a joy as well. They sometimes worship their older siblings and it can be a nice experience to be admired. Relationships with sisters, like any relationship depend on the people involved. Jennifer, we love you and pray for you...
