“"Mama" Doris is where she wanted to be for a long time. She's finally "home". With her precious son and husband. She had been wanting to go home for a while now, she's finally there. I loved her so very much, and miss her, but I am so happy she is happy now. The last time I saw her she told me "I just want to go be with Leon, I wish God would take me home." Now her wish has come true. And the tears I cry are for missing her but also for happiness because she is finally home. Always in my heart. I will never forget you and your loving spirit and generosity to everyone, and that "dry" sense of humor. I love you. You brought joy to my heart everytime I saw you. And when I could get a smile or laugh from you, that made my day. I grieve for you in my heart, and privately, but I will be there when your final wish is granted. I promise.
